Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 1600 on Thursday 28 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain, sleet, snow spreading northwards today. Showers in far north.

This Evening and Tonight:
Further rain sleet and snow the snow especially on high ground, with some heavy falls possible south and west of Inverness, but mostly rain around the coasts of the Moray Firth. Turning clearer over extreme north by dawn. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Friday:
Cloud and outbreaks of sleet and snow, coastal rain, gradually clearing southwards with sunnier skies extending from the north. Then clear frosty evening, the odd snow shower far north. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cold with widespread frosts. Northerly winds feeding brighter spells and a scattering of rain, sleet and snow showers across northern areas, while south stays brightest and mainly dry.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.